multiple successes and the warm embrace of the fan community, Lake of Peace has become an entertainment enterprise welcome to film lovers everywhere.

First founded in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in 2009, Lake of Peace was created by Matthew P. Dunnam to fulfill the desire for a more personal movie format.

After partnering with a group of like-minded artists and filmmakers, Matt and his new friends began to have moderate success with their films. Soon after, Lake of Peace launched their media entertainment platform The River that enabled local artists to sell their work remotely. "Creating a place or a moment in time where people like me feel like they belong is all I've ever wanted" said founder and CEO Matt Dunnam. The River rocketed Lake of Peace to success as they opened their Virginia-based headquarters in 2018.

Lake of Peace Entertainment is a film and amusement enterprise that uses only handmade sets and props in their films that they then convert into amusement park attractions. Lake of Peace only sells merchandise that is handmade or used in their films. Since day one, Lake of Peace has firmly held its motto: "people always come first".
